Younger and elder siblings alike will delight in this portrait of a big sister from her baby sibling's perspective. The big sister likes to choose everyone's clothes for them, take her sibling to the zoo (made out of blocks and plastic animals) and even let baby talk on the phone (sometimes). Bright, shallow-depth photographs focus on the big sister and what she does and give the impression that the reader is looking through the eyes of the baby.

Sona Sharma's house is full of three generations of people who joke often and argue sometimes. Relatives come over unannounced, the phone rings frequently, and friends drop by all the time. Then one day Amma tells Sona that she is going to have a baby. Is that good? Sona isn't so sure. She doesn't want to share her room or her things with a new baby, not to mention the attention of Amma, Appa, Thatha,

But when she learns there will be a baby-naming ceremony, she's determined to find the best name for her new brother or sister--one as nice as her own, a Hindi word for "gold." Perfectly pitched to young readers, this tale of warming up to change is followed by a glossary of words from India to explore in the story.
